VEIT names Kelly Veit next CEO

Succeeding Vaughn Veit as chief executive officer, Kelly Veit will be company's first female CEO

ROGERS, Minn. – May 3, 2021 – VEIT today announced that Kelly Veit will succeed Vaughn Veit as chief executive officer (CEO) of the specialty contracting and waste management firm effective today. Based in Rogers, Minnesota, Veit manages commercial, municipal and industrial construction projects across the Midwest and has been serving clients for more than 90 years. Kelly is the first female CEO in the company's history, and she is one of only a few female CEOs serving the construction industry in the United States.

As the third generation to lead the company, Vaughn Veit served as CEO since 1975. He attributes Veit's success to two principles — doing good work and treating people extraordinarily well. Part of the company's succession planning, this announcement follows the 2020 hiring of Tim Reimann as president of Veit. As CEO, Kelly Veit will serve in a strategic and visionary role alongside Reimann.

"Kelly has been a trusted advisor to Vaughn Veit and the company for over two decades. She has a deep understanding of the history of the company and is compelled to preserve the legacy that Vaughn has created," said Reimann. "I look forward to partnering with Kelly as we extend the VEIT legacy for the next generation of employees, clients and partner organizations."

Kelly Veit previously served as president of the U.S. subsidiary, FKUR, a German-based plastics company. She has played an active role with Veit dating back to 1995.

"I am truly honored to be chosen for the CEO position at VEIT and to join the team that Vaughn has assembled and entrusted to carry the company forward as we focus on our 2030 vision," said Kelly Veit. "I look forward to working with Tim and the leadership team in making the most of this special opportunity to lead as humble stewards of Vaughn's legacy in business and philanthropy."
